Kim Magee Named an Influential Woman of Virginia

Richmond — March 18, 2010 — Hunton & Williams LLP is pleased to announce that Kim Magee, a partner in the firm’s Richmond office, has been named among Virginia Lawyers Weekly’s 2010 “Influential Women of Virginia.” The award, which was established in 2009, annually honors 50 high-achieving women across the Commonwealth for outstanding contributions to their chosen professions, their communities and society at large.

The 2010 honorees will be profiled in the May edition of Virginia Lawyers Weekly and honored at a luncheon on May 20 at the Omni Hotel in downtown Richmond. During the luncheon, the “Influential Woman of the Year,” selected by the honorees themselves, will be announced.

“I can’t think of anyone more deserving of this recognition,” stated John O’Neill, managing partner of the firm’s Richmond office. “Kim is an exceptional lawyer who contributes greatly to the Commonwealth both through her work and her personal involvement in the community.”

The award recognizes Magee’s successful commercial lending practice, which has garnered her a national reputation with clients. Several of Magee’s financing transactions have won awards from leading industry publications, and she was named a “Rising Star” in banking for both 2007 and 2008. The award also recognizes her service to the legal profession and the community. A strong advocate for young lawyers and women, Magee plays key leadership roles in the firm’s recruiting, mentoring and women’s networking programs. In addition, she routinely handles guardianship cases through the firm’s Church Hill pro bono office, and volunteers her time as a member of the screening committee for the Mid-Atlantic Innocence Project.
