Hunton & Williams' Washington and McLean Offices Named 'Best Places to Work' by Washington Business Journal

Hunton & Williams LLP is pleased to announce that it has been selected as one of the Top 50 2008 Best Places to Work in Greater Washington by the Washington Business Journal. The firm's McLean and Washington offices will be honored at an awards breakfast on Friday, June 13, at the McLean Hilton, and recognized in a special supplement of the Journal published that same day.

According to the publication, Best Places to Work in Greater Washington was designed to honor the area's leading employers — those who go “beyond the norm to foster an enjoyable and meaningful work environment for their employees.” Companies were judged based upon the results of an employee survey, which evaluated the following:

- Team effectiveness
- Retention
- Employee alignment with company goals
- Trust with co-workers
- Individual contribution

- Manager effectiveness
- Trust in senior leaders
- Feeling valued
- Work engagement
- People practices

“We are delighted to be recognized as being among the Greater Washington area's leading employers,” stated Andrea Bear Field, managing partner of the firm's Washington office. “Like many of the other companies honored, we are a service organization. To be able to continue providing top-notch service to our clients, though, we need to ensure that we recruit great people and then retain them by making Hunton & Williams an enjoyable and rewarding place to work. This means we are on the right path.”

“This award is especially meaningful because it is based solely on what our employees said about the firm in an anonymous survey. We couldn't ask for a better endorsement,” added Tom Cawley, managing partner of Hunton & Williams' McLean office.
