

Media Seek Scott Kimpel for Comment on SEC EDGAR Hack

September 22, 2017

News

When the news broke that the SEC's EDGAR system was breached, several news organizations sought partner Scott Kimpel for comment. Kimpel, a former SEC attorney, discussed the agency's budgetary constraints and ways companies can protect their SEC filings.

Scott brings in-depth knowledge of SEC policies, procedures and enforcement philosophy to each representation. He regularly advises clients cross a broad sector of the economy facing sensitive reporting, compliance and enforcement matters before the Securities and Exchange Commission and other capital markets regulators. His practice encompasses a wide range of matters involving the securities laws, corporate governance and regulatory enforcement.

See Scott's interview on CNBC and read his comments in The Washington Post.
